The Growth of DeFi

The year 2020 begins on January 1st. In just over a year and a half, it went from 500 million to 130 billion dollars.

Decentralized exchanges (DEXs): Online exchanges help users exchange currencies for other currencies, whether U.S. dollars for bitcoin or ether for DAI. DEXs are a hot type of exchange, which connects users directly so they can trade cryptocurrencies with one another without trusting an intermediary with their money.

Yield farming: For knowledgeable traders who are willing to take on risk, there's yield farming, where users scan through various DeFi tokens in search of opportunities for larger returns.

Liquidity mining: When DeFi applications entice users to their platform by giving them free tokens. This has been the buzziest form of yield farming yet.

Composability: DeFi apps are open source, meaning the code behind them is public for anyone to view. As such, these apps can be used to "compose" new apps with the code as building blocks.

Money legos: Putting the concept "composability" another way, DeFi apps are like Legos, the toy blocks children click together to construct buildings, vehicles and so on. DeFi apps can be similarly snapped together like "money legos" to build new financial products.

Traditional finance

Is a centralised system

Verification is required when opening a complex account.

Banks profit from the middle-market price disparity, while huge companies have the last say.

Profits are taken advantage of and deposit gains are modest.

Large investment amounts, minimal returns, and inflexibility are all things to keep in mind.

Companies have power over a wide range of human factors.

Non-flexible transactions must go through a centralised review.

TokenTerminal data shows that Axie Infinity, the NFT blockchain game project, has generated the revenue of $18.48 million (July 24 – July 31), $74.51 million in the last 7 days and $167 million in the last 30 days , which hit a record high.

According to SensorTower data

In June 2021, "Honor of Kings" was the highest-earning mobile game in the world, with $277 million in revenue for the month and an average of $9.2 million per day.

Axie Infinity's single-day revenue on July 28th was $18.48 million, which exceeded that of 'Honor of Kings' by twice.

Now, the concept of "Metaverse" has become one of the few bright spots in the blockchain crypto industry.

Blockchain Metaverse Concept projects such as Axie Infinity, My Neighbor Alice, Sandbox, Decentraland and others have been highly sought-after by the market, creating phenomenal growth in both on-chain land auctions, crypto asset prices and active users in this weak market.

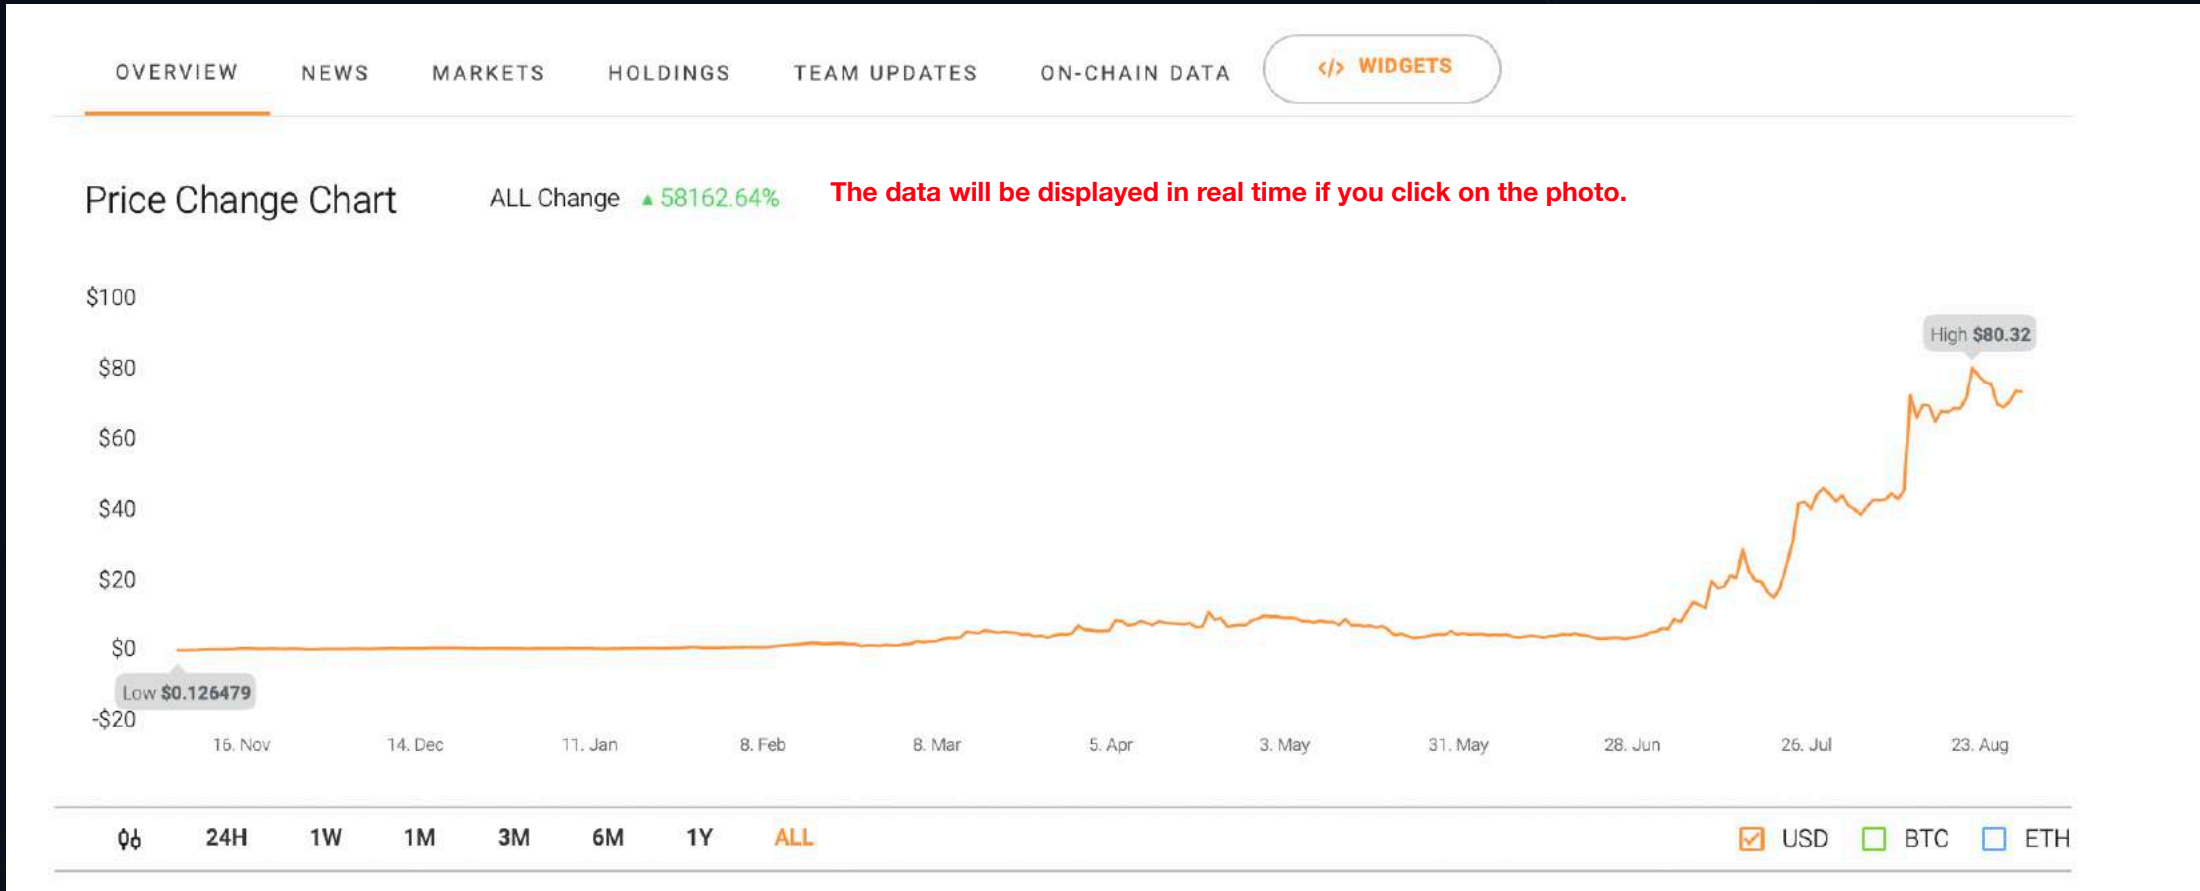

On July 11, Axie, a popular Metaverse project, announced that it has nearly 1 million daily active users, which is a height level that many DApps are unable to reach as an on-chain app. Just take the current DEX with the highest usage rate on the chain for comparison, according to Debank data, the current DEX apps with the largest number of daily active users are PancakeSwap and Uniswap (V2+ V3), with only 113,000 and 42,000 daily active users.

NFT is certainly the buzzword of the first quarter of 2021. From the American digital artist Beeple's unprecedented appearance at Christie's

His NFT work, "Every Day: The First 5000 Days", which sold for $69 million, to the soaring daily activity of NBA Topshot (photos of NBA stars' highlights posted on Topshot), NFT has gone from being an obscure term to a readily available mass entertainment commodity. In fact, NFT (Non-Fungible Token) was intended to describe a standard for the cryptographic token. In 2018, the ERC721 standard was officially launched, refining the familiar NFT technology. The market for NFT has not grown linearly in terms of hotness and transaction volume but has reached several orders of magnitude in the short term since 2021.

Data from DeFi data tracking firm DappRadar shows that more than 621,000 users were on “CryptoBlades” in the past 30 days, while that number for “Axie Infinity” is a little above 271,000.

On July 31, Binance CEO Changpeng “CZ” Zhao tweeted: “#BinanceSmartChain handled 10M+ transactions yesterday. #Ethereum handled 1.2M.”

What is Binance Smart Chain And Cross-chain Assets

LETS START

BINGO BSC

What is BSC?

Binance Smart Chain (BSC) is best described as a blockchain that runs in parallel to the Binance Chain. Unlike Binance Chain, BSC boasts smart contract functionality and compatibility with the Ethereum Virtual Machine (EVM). The design goal here was to leave the high throughput of Binance Chain intact while introducing smart contracts into its ecosystem.

In essence, both blockchains operate side-by-side. It's worth noting that BSC isn't a so-called layer two or off-chain scalability solution. It's an independent blockchain that could run even if Binance Chain went offline. That said, both chains bear a strong resemblance from a design standpoint.

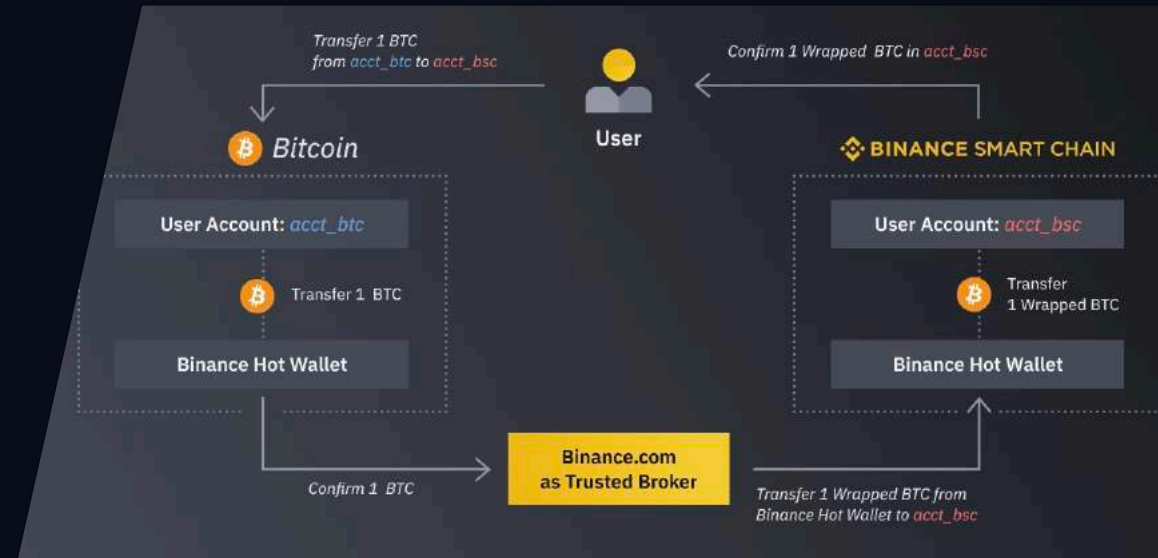

What Is Cross-chain Asset?

You may know that a number of digital assets – such as BTC, ETH, USDT, DOGE, USDT or ADA. – already exist on Binance Chain as “Peggy coins.”

These are tokens that are pegged to assets on their native chains.

For instance, you might decide to lock up 10 BTC in order to receive 10 BTCB on Binance Chain. At any time, you can trade your 10 BTCB for 10 BTC, meaning that the price of BTCB should closely track that of native BTC.

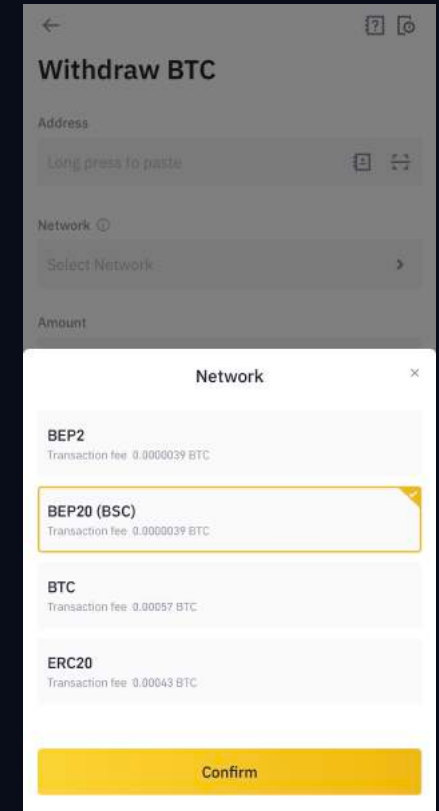

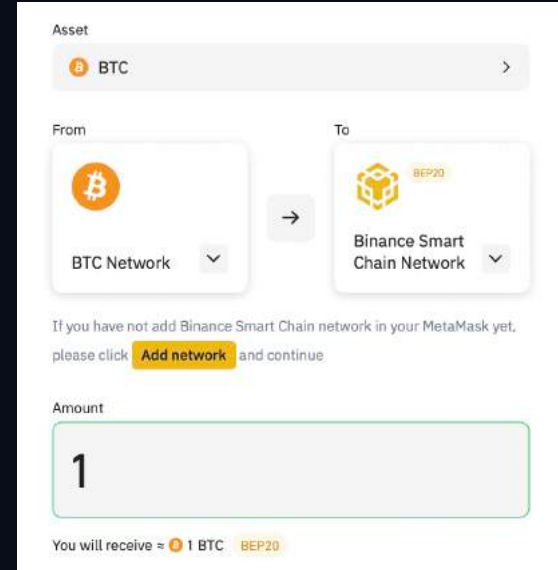

BINGO BSC

What Is Cross-chain Asset?

Withdrawal From Exchange

Binance Bridge

By doing so, you can effectively transfer these assets to BSC. No matter what kind of token is, as long as it supports BSC, cross-chain transferring can be realized.

Another way to withdraw your assets to the wallet is via the exchange by selecting BEP20(BSC). Then your assets will be deposited on the main network of BSC.
